Deferred Articles.

The President of the United States has received the resignation of General Andrew Jackson, as Governor of the Floridas.

We learn, that a serious misunderstanding has taken place at Washington, between two distinguished foreign ministers, originating in a point of etiquette at a party lately given by the President.—It is understood that harsh terms were used in the President's lobby, and that they separated by one of the parties touching the hilt of his sword.—What termination this affair may have, it is impossible to conjecture. Phila. Gaz.

The Franklin Gazette of Friday exults exceedingly in the election of Mr. Findlay to the United States' Senate, & although no fault is found with the Message of Governor Hiester, occasion is taken to say that he was incapable of writing and did not write it. Of this there is no proof: but there is positive and incontrovertible testimony, on the files of the House of Representatives, that neither Governor Findlay nor his Secretary were able to write or did write his inaugural Speech, but that they applied to and got it re-written and finished, fit for the public eye, by the writer of this article. *Penn. Extract of a letter dated Havana Nov. 27, 1821.

"An unpleasant circumstance occurred on board the American Schooner Ajax, Captain Shane, laying at the quay, on the evening of Sunday last at this port. To learn the particulars is impossible, even on the spot. I believe however, some soldiers went on board to rob the vessel, and succeeded so far as to get the Captain's watch and some of his clothes, when he (Captain Shane,) in defending his property as well as his life, being approached by two soldiers with drawn daggers, fired two pistols, and, I believe killed one and wounded the other, when immediately a body of armed soldiers rushed upon the deck, and cut the Captain down with their swords. He lies badly wounded, one cut extending across his right eye to the left corner of his mouth, and one cut across his head, but I believe the skull is not fractured; a stab in the belly which the Doctor thinks is mortal, yet I have hopes he is getting better.—The mate is also so badly wounded that his life is despaired of. The sailors are all put in jail, together with the ringleaders of the Spaniards in the affair. The vessel is given up to the consignees, and I am told by reputable authority, that the Governor reprobates the conduct of Capt. Shane. This affair has produced much excitement here among the rabble, and Americans are much in danger.

Demerara, Oct. 24.

An instance of the extraordinary violence with which lightning acts, on the sudden explosion of electrical clouds, occurred in these seas not many days ago, on board the brig Susan, Captain Thompson, belonging to St. Andrews, N. B. which arrived here on Friday last. On the 16th instant, about twelve o'clock, all hands being on the fore-topsail yard, the dangerous fluid struck the vessel with terrible force, coming down by the wedges of the fore mast, which it carried away in a moment, about 8 feet above the deck, along with every soul aloft, and shattered the main-topmast and fib-boom into splinters. It also burst the ship on the starbord bow, 2 planks from the deck. One of the crew, was in a manner annihilated by the thunderbolt,—no mark remained of him but spots of his blood on the sails and rigging. Another whom the lightning struck, was so severely wounded on the head, and so much scorched, that he remains unfit for duty.—The rest of the men were more or less hurt by the fall, when the masts and rigging came down. The dreadful situation of the master of the vessel, may well be conceived but cannot be described. It is gratifying, however, to know, that the crew reached the vessel, and, with the usual intrepidity of British seamen, immediately set about cutting and clearing the wreck, altho' the most of them must have been violently stunned from being dashed overboard. After considerable labor, they succeeded in erecting a jury mast—and were enabled to proceed hither. Many of our readers must have been astonished at the powers of Electricity, when only collected and employed by human art; but how much more awful is it when directed and exercised in the course of nature.

GOODNESS REWARDED.

We observe, in the Boston Centinel, some extraordinary accounts which happened about 70 years ago, of some young men, in the humble walk of life, rising to great eminence—and all, no doubt, in consequence of behaving as young men ought to behave—pure, correct, moral, and honest in all their transactions. One, was a young Bostonian, who behaved so well, that his master, (a merchant of this town) sent him on an important agency before he was of age—afterwards gave him one of his daughters in marriage, when he proceeded to London, and was settled there as the agent of his father-in-law—and such was his eminence, than he accumulated a large fortune in less than 20 years, was chosen a member of Parliament, and Lord Mayor of London. Another young man, named Hope, born at Quincy, came to Boston to live with his uncle—and at the age of 17, he went to London, and from thence to Amsterdam, where he became the greatest merchant and banker ever known before or since. There is no person who does business in any part of Europe, but what the name of Hope is familiar to, as a great banker. Another young Bostonian was employed in the humble capacity of a sailor boy, and in a voyage to the West Indies, had the misfortune to have his leg bit off by a shark. He recovered his health, and finally settled in London, and became Lord Mayor of that city. At the time of his death, he was Commissary General of the whole British Army, with a salary of 5000l. per annum. We mention these things as a stimulus for young men to behave well, as there is no knowing how much may be done in the journey through life. (Charles Courier.

We learn, that a serious misunderstanding has taken place at Washington, between two distinguished foreign ministers, originating in a point of etiquette at a party lately given by the President.—It is understood that harsh terms were used in the President's lobby, and that they separated by one of the parties touching the hilt of his sword.—What termination this affair may have, it is impossible to conjecture. *Phila. The Franklin Gazette of Friday exults exceedingly in the election of Mr. Findlay to the United States' Senate, & although no fault is fonnd with the Message of Governor Hiester, occasion is taken to say that he was incapable of writing and did not write it. Of this there is no proof: but there is positive and incontrovertible testimony, on the files of the House of Representatives, that neither Governor Findlay nor his Secretary were able to write or did write his inaugural Speech, but that they applied to and got it re-written and finished, fit for the public eye, by the writer of this article. *Dem. Extract of a letter dated Havana Nov. 27, 1821.

"An unpleasant circumstance occurred on board the American Schooner Ajax, Captain Shane, laying at the quay, on the evening of Sunday last at this port. To learn the particulars is impossible, even on the spot. I believe however, some soldiers went on board to rob the vessel, and succeeded so far as to get the Captain's watch and some of his clothes, when he (Captain Shane,) in defending his property as well as his life, being approached by two soldiers with drawn daggers, fired two pistols, and, I believe killed one and wounded the other, when immediately a body of armed soldiers rushed upon the deck, and cut the Captain down with their swords. He lies badly wounded, one cut extending across his right eye to the left corner of his mouth, and one cut across his head, but I believe the skull is not fractured; a stab in the belly which the Doctor thinks is mortal, yet I have hopes he is getting better.—The mate is also so badly wounded that his life is despaired of. The sailors are all put in jail, together with the ringleaders of the Spaniards in the affair. The vessel is given up to the consignees, and I am told by reputable authority, that the Governor reprobates the conduct of Capt. Shane. This affair has produced much excitement here among the rabble, and Americans are much in danger.

Demerara, Oct. 24.

An instance of the extraordinary violence with which lightning acts, on the sudden explosion of electrical clouds, occurred in these seas not many days ago, on board the brig Susan, Captain Thompson, belonging to St. Andrews, N. B. which arrived here on Friday last. On the 16th instant, about twelve o'clock, all hands being on the fore-topsail yard, the dangerous fluid struck the vessel with terrible force, coming down by the wedges of the fore mast, which it carried away in a moment, about 8 feet above the deck, along with every soul aloft, and shattered the maintopmast and fib-boom into splinters. It also burst the ship on the starbord bow, 2 planks from the deck. One of the crew, was in a manner annihilated by the thunderbolt,—no mark remained of him but spots of his blood on the sails and rigging. Another whom the lightning struck, was so severely wounded on the head, and so much scorched, that he remains unfit for duty.—The rest of the men were more or less hurt by the fall, when the masts and rigging came down. The dreadful situation of the master of the vessel, may well be conceived but cannot be described. It is gratifying, however, to know, that the crew reached the vessel, and, with the usual intrepidity of British seamen, immediately set about cutting and clearing the wreck, altho' the most of them must have been violently stunned from being dashed overboard. After considerable labor, they succeeded in erecting a jury mast—and were enabled to proceed hither. Many of our readers must have been astonished at the powers of Electricity, when only collected and employed by human art; but how much more awful is it when directed and exercised in the course of nature.

GOODNESS REWARDED.

We observe, in the Boston Centinel, some extraordinary accounts which happened about 70 years ago, of some young men, in the humble walk of life, rising to great eminence—and all, no doubt, in consequence of behaving as young men ought to behave—pure, correct, moral, and honest in all their transactions. One, was a young Bostonian, who behaved so well, that his master, (a merchant of this town) sent him on an important agency before he was of age—afterwards gave him one of his daughters in marriage, when he proceeded to London, and was settled there as the agent of his father-in-law—and such was his eminence, than he accumulated a large fortune in less than 30 years, was chosen a member of Parliament, and Lord Mayor of London. Another young man, named Hope, born at Quincy, came to Boston to live with his uncle—and at the age of 17, he went to London, and from thence to Amsterdam, where he became the greatest merchant and banker ever known before or since. There is no person who does business in any part of Europe, but what the name of Hope is familiar to, as a great banker. Another young Bostonian was employed in the humble capacity of a sailor boy, and in a voyage to the West Indies, had the misfortune to have his leg bit off by a shark. He recovered his health, and finally settled in London, and became Lord Mayor of that city. At the time of his death, he was Commissary General of the whole British Army, with a salary of 5000*l.* per annum. We mention these things as a stimulus for young men to behave well, as there is no knowing how our lot may be cast in our journey through life. G.

A SEVERE LESSON.

M. de la Place relates the following anecdote of the late Count d'Egmont, as delivered to him by the Count himself. 'I had not been,' said he, 'above six months in the Mousquetaires, before enchanted at being released from the trammels of the school, which had for a long time annoyed me exceedingly, I plunged blindly into the vortex of pleasures, in which I saw my young companions enjoying themselves.

'One night after having dined sumptuously and joyfully with several of my friends, we proceeded to the opera, which we found extravagantly crowded, and where after having pushed and squeezed ourselves in as well as we could, all obtained standing room in the centre of the pit. There forced to stop, I should as my companions did, have waited with great patience if I had not unluckily found directly before me an old gentleman in a brigadier's wig, whose amplitude formed before my eyes a species of screen, which totally concealed from me any thing that was going forward on the stage, and especially from seeing a young dancing girl in whom I felt a great interest.

After having begged and prayed with the gentleman by whom I was already incommoded exceedingly, to allow me a glimpse of the stage, by a certain change of position, which he dryly answered was impossible: Irritated by his coolness, and my own awkward situation, at which to crown my misery my neighbours and especially my young companions were heartily laughing, I took from my pocket a pair of scissors, with which I set to work, not only to prune away the superfluous branches and foliage, if I may use the expression, which annoyed me, but also the thick clubs which served to ornament its tail.

'The burst of laughter which my vengeance excited, having awakened my gentleman from the species of apathy in which he had till then seemed buried, he perceived the state to which I had reduced his periwig. 'My young friend,' said he turning round, as well as he could, 'I expect you will not leave the house without me.' This little civility, continued the Count d'Egmont, and especially a certain glance of the eye by which it was accompanied, by making me sensible of the whole extent of my folly, moderated I confess, considerably the pleasure I had felt in committing it. However, the wine was poured out, and I felt that I was compelled to drink it. At the conclusion of the opera my gentleman without speaking gave me a sign to follow him.

'After having crossed, not without difficulty, the Square of the Palais Royal, and passed through the Rue St. Thomas du Louvre, we came under the arcade where, stopping suddenly, 'M de Le Compte de'Egmont' said he, 'for I have the honour of being acquainted with you, you are young; and I owe you a lesson, for which your late father, whom I knew better than I do you, would perhaps have thanked me: when a man gives a public insult, & especially to an old soldier, he ought at least to know how to fight. 'You are most cruelly in the right, answered I, endeavouring to stifle the feelings which were agitating me, and I hope soon to prove myself worthy of your esteem. I fixedly determined rather to perish than to expose myself to fresh sarcasms from this singular enemy, I placed myself opposite to him, and attacked him with a coolness equal to that which he had displayed in defending himself. 'Very well, very well indeed, exclaimed from time to time this devil in human form, until the moment when having run me through the sword arm, he said, 'there that's enough for the present.' So saying, placing me against the wall, and telling me to wait till he came back, he ran to the Palais Royal, brought a coach, bound up my wound with a handkerchief, and telling the coachman to drive to Mousquetaries de la Rue de Beaune, he delivered me into the hands of the porter and took his leave.

'After a confinement of more than six weeks, which were required to cure my wound, I had not rejoined the world more than a week, when one evening going to the Cafe de la Regence, to look for some of my companions, I recognized my gentleman, who quitting his seat placed his finger on his mouth, and exclaiming 'Chut,' rose, came towards me and made me a signal to follow him. North West Expedition.

The following letter from an officer engaged in the voyage of discovery, is the first intelligence which has been received.

Hudson Straits, July 16, 1821.

"The day after the transport left us, we entered these straits, which we found choked with ice; we entered it nevertheless, and at first made considerable progress, but, as we expected, were at length beset, or in other words the floating ice having coalesced on all sides we found ourselves firmly impeded in the midst of it. Ever since we have been moving to and fro with it, at the rate of five miles an hour, according to the flux and reflux of the tide. Sometimes the ice dividing would allow us to push in a few miles, & again uniting, incarcerate us for days. By this mode of progressing, we have continued to advance about 70 miles in the Straits.

"When I wrote by the transport, I think I expressed an opinion, that we had left England much too early. This has been verified not only by the difficulties we have met with, but also by the circumstance of the Hudson Bay traders having overtaken us. These vessels did not leave the Thames until the end of May. They go into the company's settlement, and return immediately.—The ice by the late rains attended by tolerably warm sun, has been dissolving daily, and we have to day bored through upwards of ten miles of it. We expect daily to have some Esquimaux visiters.

We are glad to find from the following letter, received yesterday by a gentleman in Baltimore, that through the vigilance of those who have the handling of large sums of money the villains who have so successfully imposed upon the community, are likely to receive the reward they so justly merit.

Savannah, December 20, 1821.

Mr.——, arrived here yesterday in pursuit of three persons, suspected of being counterfeiters—they were apprehened a few minutes after Mr.——arrived, and examined by the mayor, who committed them for further examination this day.—They had a large quantity of genuine notes, and several $100 Bills on the Farmers' Bank of Virginia, and 100's on the Planters, and Mechanics, Bank of Charleston and Bank of Orleans, counterfeits;—they are the best executed Bills (for counterfeits) we ever saw, specially those on the Farmers' Bank of Virginia. Mr.——had taken three notes of $100, and we should not have hesitated to take any amount. The Counterfeits, Virginia, are on the Lynchburgh and Petersburgh Branches, Murray, Draper and Fairman's plate

P. S. Since writing the above one of the persons has been re-examined and $11,000 in Counterfeits of the above Banks have been found on him. Constables are in pursuit of a fourth person. N. Y. Spectator.

Mr. J. M. Forbes, our intelligent and active agent at Buenos Ayres, has obtained from the government a decree, of which the following are the important provisions, which, with the exertions of our navy, we trust will soon put an end to the piracy which, to our disgrace, has so long been suffered to exist in our own waters. The whole decree is given in the Boston Centinel. By which it is ordered, that

1st. In future, no Letters of Marque and Reprisal shall be granted without previously and solemnly publishing the cause that obliges the government to have recourse to the measure.

2dly. Every person within the territory of this Province, who may be in possession of any Letter of Marque, must present it to the Minister of the Navy, within fifteen days from the date of this decree.

3dly. Those persons in countries situated beyond the equinoctial line, or on the coast of the Pacific, must present said Letter of Marque, at the Navy Office, within eight months.

4th. The securities given shall become responsible for the fulfilment of the two foregoing articles

5th. Every Commander of a Privateer, cruising in virtue of a Letter of Marque, granted by any of the governments that have existed in this capital, at sight of this decree, shall cease to cruise, and shall put into port to disarm, and return the license.

6th Any one who shall transgress the foregoing articles, will incur the guilt of piracy.

7th. Every Privateer that shall continue to cruise after the expiration of eight months from the date of this decree, authorized by license, from the government of this country, will be treated as a pirate.

8th. The Minister of War and Navy is charged with the execution of this decree.

BRATTLEBORO', Dec. 24.

Vermont Juvenile Heroism.

A few months since, the citizens of Londonderry, Vermont, having had their flocks annoyed by the ravages of bears from the adjacent mountains, turned out to hunt and destroy them. Mr. Hazen and his son, a lad about 12 years old, were among the number. A large bear was discovered by Mr. Hazen and his boy, and being wounded, passed around a rock or ledge, where it was met by Mr. Hazen, who, in attempting to disable it, was disarmed and thrown down by the furious beast. Hazen called to his boy in this exigency. The lad, with a presence of mind beyond his years and strength, rushed upon the bear with his axe, and so dexterously applied his blows, that he rescued his father, and they killed the bear. Mr. Hazen was considerably injured, but is doing well. As he fell, he clenched the under jaw of the bear, and though his hands were severely wounded, this circumstance probably saved his life. A minute's delay or perturbation in the boy would have been fatal to the father. Courage and action like this ought to be held up for example. The substance of the foregoing was communicated by a respectable magistrate in Londonderry, and is matter of general notoriety in the vicinity.

From the Arkansas Gazette, Nov 10.

Indian Murder—Just as our paper was going to press, a gentleman arrived here from the Mississippi, who informs us that a most horrid and unprovoked murder was committed about the last of October, in the new purchase in the Choctaw Nation, on a party of U. S. Surveyors, consisting of ten persons only one of whom escaped.

The murder was committed on the lower line, and about 150 miles from Port Gibson—by Choctaw Indians. The quarrel, we understand, originated in consequence of some trivial affair.—Our informant received the above information from Col Nichols, who passed up the Mississippi a few days since, on his way to the Chickasaw Bluffs, with the Chickasaw annuity.

Carpeting.—Messrs. John and Nicholas Haight of New-York are manufacturing great quantities of carpeting, composed of cotton warp and woollen weft, which is highly approved, and for which they have a patent. It is spoken of as being remarkable for its beauty, firmness, and durability, and they employ several hundred persons in their establishment;—which has excited great jealousy in England; having superceded the foreign commodity, and kept within our country, already, several hundred thousand dollars.—Aurora

AN INTERESTING REPORT

Is in circulation in this city, that several gentlemen, all good accountants, who some weeks since volunteered to examine and restate the accounts of the late Treasurer, Major Gordon, during the whole time he was in office, have completed the task; and are of opinion, that, instead of his being in arrears to the state upwards of 16,000 dollars, the state is in debt to him about 4000. The errors which make this wide difference, are said to have been discovered in the Militia Account. Of the particulars, we are not informed, not having conversed with either of the gentlemen alluded to, but taken what we have stated from those who have.

'This second lesson which was very similar to the first, was followed some months after by a third. This executioner if I may so call him, at last became so terrible to me, that I hardly ever ventured into public without feeling a sort of shudder, lest I should encounter him, for I had forget to mention, that the last lesson which he had condescended to give me was on the eve of the carnival, which he had made me pass in the most melancholy manner possible in my bed.

'Judge therefore of my joy, as well as gratitude, when a waiter from the Cafe de la Regence, arrived one morning at my lodgings and said, 'you will pardon me Monsieur le Compte, but I thought you would not be sorry to hear that Monsieur 'Chut' died last night, and my mistress hopes we shall soon see you at our house.'

This has been verified not only by the difficulties we have met with, but also by the circumstance of the Hudson Bay traders having overtaken us. These vessels did not leave the Thames until the end of May. They go into the company's settlement, and return immediately. —The ice by the late rains attended by tolerably warm sun, has been dissolving daily, and we have to day bored through upwards of ten miles of it. We expect daily to have some Esquimaux visiters.

We are glad to find from the following letter, received yesterday by a gentleman in Baltimore, that through the vigilance of those who have the handling of large sums of money the villains who have so successfully imposed upon the community, are likely to receive the reward they so justly merit.

Savannah, December 20, 1821.

Mr. ——, arrived here yesterday in pursuit of three persons, suspected of being counterfeiters- they were apprehened a few minutes after Mr.——arrived, and examined by the mayor, who committed them for further examination this day.—They had a large quantity of genuine notes, and several $100 Bills on the Farmers' Bank of Virginia, and 100's on the Planters, and Mechanics, Bank of Charleston and Bank of Orleans, counterfeits;—they are the best executed Bills (for counterfeits) we ever saw, specially those on the Farmers' Bank of Virginia. Mr.——had taken three notes of $100, and we should not have hesitated to take any amount. The Counterfeits, Virginia, are on the Lynchburgh and Petersburgh Branches, Murray, Draper and Fairman's plate

P. S. Since writing the above one of the persons has been re-examined and $11,000 in Counterfeits of the above Banks have been found on him. Constables are in pursuit of a fourth person. N. Y. Spectator.

Mr J. M. Forbes, our intelligent and active agent at Buenos Ayres, has obtained from the government a decree, of which the following are the important provisions, which, with the exertions of our navy, we trust will soon put an end to the piracy which, to our disgrace, has so long been suffered to exist in our own waters. The whole decree is given in the Boston Centinel. By which it is ordered, that

1st. In future, no Letters of Marque and Reprisal shall be granted without previously and solemnly publishing the cause that obliges the government to have recourse to the measure.

2dly. Every person within the territory of this Province, who may be in possession of any Letter of Marque, must present it to the Minister of the Navy, within fifteen days from the date of this decree.

3dly. Those persons in countries situated beyond the equinoctial line, or on the coast of the Pacific, must present said Letter of Marque, at the Navy Office, within eight months.

4th. The securities given shall become responsible for the fulfilment of the two foregoing articles

5th. Every Commander of a Privateer, cruising in virtue of a Letter of Marque, granted by any of the governments that have existed in this capital, at sight of this decree, shall cease to cruise, and shall put into port to disarm, and return the license.

6th Any one who shall transgress the foregoing articles, will incur the guilt of piracy.

7th. Every Privateer that shall continue to cruise after the expiration of eight months from the date of this decree, authorized by license, from the government of this country, will be treated as a pirate.

8th. The Minister of War and Navy is charged with the execution of this decree.

Vermont Juvenile Heroism.

A few months since, the citizens of Londonderry, Vermont, having had their flocks annoyed by the ravages of bears from the adjacent mountains, turned out to hunt and destroy them. Mr. Hazen and his son, a lad about 12 years old, were among the number. A large bear was discovered by Mr. Hazen and his boy, and being wounded, passed around a rock or ledge, where it was met by Mr. Hazen, who, in attempting to disable it, was disarmed and thrown down by the furious beast. Hazen called to his boy in this exigency. The lad, with a presence of mind beyond his years and strength, rushed upon the bear with his axe, and so dexterously applied his blows, that he rescued his father, and they killed the bear. Mr. Hazen was considerably injured, but is doing well. As he fell, he clenched the under jaw of the bear, and though his hands were severely wounded, this circumstance probably saved his life. A minute's delay or perturbation in the boy would have been fatal to the father. Courage and action like this ought to be held up for example. The substance of the foregoing was communicated by a respectable magistrate in Londonderry, and is matter of general notoriety in the vicinity.

From the Arkansas Gazette, Nov 10.

Indian Murder—Just as our paper was going to press, a gentleman arrived here from the Mississippi, who informs us that a most horrid and unprovoked murder was committed about the last of October, in the new purchase in the Choctaw Nation, on a party of U. S. Surveyors, consisting of ten persons only one of whom escaped.

The murder was committed on the lower line, and about 150 miles from Port Gibson—by Choctaw Indians. The quarrel, we understand, originated in consequence of some trivial affair.—Our informant received the above information from Col Nichols, who passed up the Mississippi a few days since, on his way to the Chickasaw Bluffs, with the Chickasaw annuity.

Carpeting.—Messrs. John and Nicholas Haight of New-York are manufacturing great quantities of carpeting composed of cotton warp and woollen weft, which is highly approved, and for which they have a patent. It is spoken of as being remarkable for its beauty, firmness, and durability, and they employ several hundred persons in their establishment;—which has excited great jealousy in England; having superceded the foreign commodity, and kept within our country, already, several hundred thousand dollars.—Aurora

Is in circulation in this city, that several gentlemen, all good accountants, who some weeks since volunteered to examine and restate the accounts of the late Treasurer, Major Gordon, during the whole time he was in office, have completed the task; and are of opinion, that, instead of his being in arrears to the state upwards of 16,000 dollars, the state is in debt to him about 4000. The errors which make this wide difference, are said to have been discovered in the Militia Account. Of the particulars, we are not informed, not having conversed with either of the gentlemen alluded to, but taken what we have stated from those who have.

Counterfeits.

The public are cautioned against receiving Three dollar counterfeit bills purporting, to be on the Pittsburgh and Steubenville turnpike road company; they are a good imitation of the genuine notes, and cannot easily be distinguished, except by the colour, which is of a deeper blue than thaa those done on the company's plate.

We are happy to learn that a gang of wretches engaged in the circulation, and probably in making the plate of these counterfeits, have been ferreted out; several of whom are now in jail, waiting their trial.

Pennsylvania Legislature.

REMOVAL TO THE CAPITOL.

The members of the Legislature removed to the State Capitol yesterday, in the following order.

The members of both branches of the Legislature met in the morning, at 10 o'clock, at the old State House—from whence they moved to the Capitol in the following order:

1. The architect and his workmen, two and two.
2. Clergy.
3. Governor and heads of department.
4. Officers of the Senate.
5. Speaker of the Senate.
6. Members of the Senate, two and two.
7. Officers of the House of Representatives.
8. Members, two and two.
9. Judges.
10. Civil authority of Harrisburg.
11. Citizens.

In front of the Capitol, the architect and his workmen opened into two lines and admitted the procession to pass between them into the Capitol.

The ceremony of "uniting in prayers to the Almighty God, imploring his blessing on their deliberations," required by a concurrent resolution of the two houses, took place in the presence of a large assemblage of inhabitants of this borough and county, and strangers.

The service was opened by a very pertinent and impressive prayer by the Rev'd. Dr. Lochman of Harrisburgh. The Rev'd Dr. Mason, principal of Dickinson College, delivered an appropriate discourse on the occasion, which will appear in our next paper.

Important Constitutional Question.

The proceedings of the Legislature of this Commonwealth, on Saturday the 22d instant, are of such an extraordinary nature that we cannot permit them to pass without remark. What we have given upon the subject is a mere statement of the case, without any allusion to consequences: but as this case involves a constitutional question, which has, perhaps, never arisen before, the people of Pennsylvania, and especially those who wish to preserve the constitution inviolate, cannot but feel a deep interest in the issue, we think it our duty to give some more particular observations upon it.

Some days previous to the 22d, the Legislature by a concurrent vote of both Houses, had agreed to adjourn on that day, to meet in the State Capitol on Wednesday the 2d of January. This joint resolution was regularly presented to the Governor for his approbation: but that virtuous and intelligent chief magistrate, ever studious to protect, not only the liberties of the people, but the rights and privileges of the popular branches of the Legislature, returned it to the House of Representatives, in which it had originated, without his approbation. The constitution pointed out this course, and leaving out of view every question of expediency, he had no alternative to choose, except between sanctioning a long duration of Christmas Holidays, in a manner unauthorised by the constitution, and the preservation of that constitution which he had sworn to support. He decided in favor of the constitution, and returned the resolution, with his objection, as has been already stated.

On reference to Article I, section 19 of the Constitution of Pennsylvania, it will be found, that 'neither House shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place, than that in which the two Houses shall be sitting.'

Having returned this resolution to the House of Representatives, that body did not proceed in the manner prescribed by the Constitution, to reconsider it, but passed another resolution adjourning the House to the day previously fixed on, and without any communication of their doings to the Senate.

We do not pretend to decide upon this case either as lawyers or constitutional judges, but common sense induces us to believe, that this act of the House was not only highly irregular and illegal, but unconstitutional also. What the consequence of this illegal adjournment may be, we cannot foresee; but that disorder and confusion must grow out of it seems evident; and unless some remedy can be devised to repair the mischief, we are of opinion, that the legislative functions of both Houses are at an end, and that they cannot, in the present state of things, pass any law, or do any legislative act that can be valid or constitutional.

What is to be done? is the question, Will the Assembly go on to meet and reorganize their respective bodies? or will they seperate and return home, leaving the public business undone? If the Executive possesses the constitutional power of re-instating them in their legislative functions, and thus save a heavy expense to the people, would it not be advisable that he should so interfere? By the 12th section of the 2d article of the constitution 'he may, on extraordinary occasions, convene the General Assembly,' and altho' this occasion may not be of the kind contemplated by the framers of the Constitution, yet no one can deny, that it is an occasion of an 'extraordinary nature,' and merits Executive interposition.

CONGRESSIONAL RETROSPECT.

In taking a glance at the Congressional proceedings of the holiday week, it will be perceived that the 'light business' only of the session has been touched: Amongst the most worthy of note, we select the following:

Mr. Johnson, of Kentucky, in the Senate, brought forward the only proposition of novelty submitted in that body for the past legislative week, which is no less than to permit the collection of postage money in the western states to be made in the currency of the respective states, where the letters, &c. are distributed. A similar question we believe was unsuccessfully agitated in the Legislature of Kentucky, in order to obtain the assent of the general government. The Senate probably with a view to prevent the further increase of unavailable funds in the Treasury, which has already accumulated to 752,000 dollars, (if we include the 152,000 likely to be lost by a deposit made in the Missouri Bank) have, for the present, laid this resolve on the table.

The Treasury.—Mr. Niles, of the Baltimore Weekly Register, who has more patience and industry than any body else, in wading through tables and columns of figures, has just published a long and able article upon the situation of the Treasury, giving its past, present, and probable state. In performing this labour, he has gone back and examined the annual treasury reports, since and including 1817. In 1817 the secretary calculated that the surpluses of the sinking fund, which would accrue between the first days of January, 1820 and 1825, as abundantly sufficient to meet the payment of the 19 millions of debt due in the latter years; but for the service of 1820 and 1821, we have used what should have been the surpluses of that fund, and besides borrowed eight millions. Instead therefore, of paying off the debt, the secretary congratulates us that we may not have to borrow money to pay current expenses until the said year of 1825, and we are amused with a project to pay the debt due in that year, which bears an interest of six per cent. by borrowing other money to bear an interest at 5 per cent. if the 5 per cent stock should remain above par and we are told of the saving that may thereby be made. The real substantial difference between the secretary's estimate in 1817, and the facts which he sets forth in 1821, (only four years apart,) may be represented thus—

There was to be redeemed of the public debt in 1825 after paying all other demands on the government, the sum of	19,000,000
We have already borrowed	8,000,000
Present positive difference	$27,000,000

In 1817, the Secretary told us that the whole of the public debt would be extinguished in 1830. When does he calculate on paying it off now? Mr. Niles concludes, that a loan in some shape is required, during the present session of Congress, or that the treasury will be exhausted before this time next year; and he also believes we shall have to borrow every year to the year 1825, unless the revenue is encreased by new taxes, or the expenditure diminished by a new and actual retrenchment. Although this document appears to have delighted so many of our fraternity, yet from the first we have believed it rather a blue report.

PRIZE TO THE ALLIGATOR.

Arived at this port on Tuesday, Portuguese ship Mariana Flora, Venture Anacleto de Brette, master, from Bahia for Lisbon, where the vessel belongs, having been ordered to this port by the United States schooner Alligator, Capt. Stockton, for an attack upon the flag of the United Sates, in charge of Lieut. Abbot. The circumstances relating to the occurrence are as follows:

On the 5th November, lat. 20, long. 30, the Mariana Flora was discovered by the Alligator, standing to the Northward and Eastward, but soon after tacked to the Southward, and as the Alligator nearing her, she clewed up her courses, handed her top-gallant sails and hoisted a small blue pennant half-mast at the mized-top-gallant mast.

It was supposed on board the Alligator that the ship was in distress and all sail was accordingly made to approach her, but they were shortly after surprized by a fire from the whole broadside of the ship, when the Alligator was within a short distance of her, which she kept up for near an hour in a raking position, before a single gun was discharged from the Alligator; during all which time the U. S. flag was flying on board the Alligator, and the ship displaying no national flag.

At the expiration of nearly an hour from the time of the first attack, the Alligator commenced firing upon the ship, which she kept up till within pistol shot of the ship, on her quarter, when the broadside of the schooner being changed, Capt. Stockton hailed the ship to know who and what she was, whether she had any national flag, to which he received no answer. A few minutes after, the Portuguese flag was run up the mizzen, and immediately after the flag was hoisted, two guns were discharged at the Alligator. Captain Stockton then hailed the ship and told them if they did not cease firing and send their boat along side the schooner, he would sink her. The crew of the ship then deserted their quarters and the Captain came on board the Alligator.

The ship mounted twelve guns, viz 2 long 12, 2 36, 4 24 & 4 18 pound carronades, manned with 26 men, including officers. A part of the guns were thrown over board; all the crew of the ship were left on board, and have arrived in her.

Extract from Carthagena dated 17th November.

'Carthagena has at at length been given up to the Republican army, by capitulation—and I am happy to say it has been strictly adhered to by the Patriots: too much praise cannot be lavished on officers and men, both at and since their entry. The strictest dicipline has been preserved. We have about five thousand men in the city, moderate and well conducted—in short, we are in a much more flourishing situation than for many years past. Commerce begins to flourish and produce is coming fast.'

Extract of a letter from a respectable source of a late date, from St. Fee de Bagota.

'Dr. Bollman, agent for Barings of London, has rented from the government of Columbia the Salt Works at Zipaquira for twenty years for the sum of two millions of dollars to be paid in advance, and is now treating to take the national debt amounting to about three and a half millions of dollars at 7 per cent. interest—this is very favourable for the country.'

The Liberator Bolivar.

On the 1st Oct. this extraordinary man, on being called upon to take the oath as President of Columbia, addressed an eloquent letter to the President of the Congress, earnestly desiring to be excused from serving in that capacity; but he was overruled by them. On taking the oath he delivered an energetic speech, of which follows a curious sample: 'I am the son of war, the man whom battles have raised to the magistracy. Fortune has sustained me in this rank, and victory has confirmed it. But those titles, are not those which are consecrated by justice, by the welfare and the wishes of the nation. The sword, which has governed Colombia, is not the balance of Astrea, it is the scourge of the genious of evil, which sometimes Heaven permits to descend to the earth, for the punishment of tyrants, and the admonition of the people. This sword will be of no use on the day of peace, and that shall be the last of my power; because thus I have sworn within myself; because I have promised it to Colombia: and because there can be no republic, when the people are not secure in the exercise of their own powers. A man like me, is a dangerous citizen in a popular government—is a direct menace to the national sovereignty.

I wish to become a citizen, in order to be free, and that all may be so too. I prefer the title of a citizen to that of liberator—because this emanates from war, and that from the laws. Exchange, sir, all my honors for that of a 'good citizen.'

The President's answer is full of that heart-warning eloquence, and overpowering sentiment, which distinguishes times of public trial and the years of national regeneration.

FRIDAY MORNING, JANUARY 11, 1822.

Counterfeits.

The public are cautioned against receiving Three dollar counterfeit bills purporting, to be on the Pittsburgh and Steubenville turnpike road company; they are a good imitation of the genuine notes, and cannot easily be distinguished, except by the colour, which is of a deeper blue than than those done on the company's plate.

We are happy to learn that a gang of wretches engaged in the circulation, and probably in making the plate of these counterfeits, have been ferreted out; several of whom are now in jail, waiting their trial.

Pennsylvania Legislature.

REMOVAL TO THE CAPITOL.

The members of the Legislature removed to the State Capitol yesterday, in the following order.

The members of both branches of the Legislature met in the morning, at 10 o'clock, at the old State House—from whence they moved to the Capitol in the following order:

1. The architect and his workmen, two and two.
2. Clergy.
3. Governor and heads of department.
4. Officers of the Senate.
5. Speaker of the Senate.
6. Members of the Senate, two and two.
7. Officers of the House of Representatives.
9. Members, two and two.
10. Judges.
11. Civil authority of Harrisburg.
12. Citizens.

In front of the Capitol, the architect and his workmen opened into two lines and admitted the procession to pass between them into the Capitol.

The ceremony of "uniting in prayers to the Almighty God, imploring his blessing on their deliberations," required by a concurrent resolution of the two houses, took place in the presence of a large assemblage of inhabitants of this borough and county, and strangers.

The service was opened by a very pertinent and impressive prayer by the Rev'd. Dr. Lochman of Harrisburgh. The Rev'd Dr. Mason, principal of Dickinson College, delivered an appropriate discourse on the occasion, which will appear in our next paper.

Important Constitutional Question.

The proceedings of the Legislature of this Commonwealth, on Saturday the 22d instant, are of such an extraordinary nature that we cannot permit them to pass without remark. What we have given upon the subject is a mere statement of the case, without any allusion to consequences: but as this case involves a constitutional question, which has, perhaps, never arisen before, the people of Pennsylvania, and especially those who wish to preserve the constitution inviolate, cannot but feel a deep interest in the issue, we think it our duty to give some more particular observations upon it.

Some days previous to the 22d, the Legislature by a concurrent vote of both Houses, had agreed to adjourn on that day, to meet in the State Capitol on Wednesday the 2d of January. This joint resolution was regularly presented to the Governor for his approbation: but that virtuous and intelligent chief magistrate, ever studious to protect, not only the liberties of the people, but the rights and privileges of the popular branches of the Legislature, returned it to the House of Representatives, in which it had originated, without his approbation. The constitution pointed out this course, and leaving out of view every question of expediency, he had no alternative to choose, except between sanctioning a long duration of Christmas Holidays, in a manner unauthorised by the constitution, and the preservation of that constitution which he had sworn to support. He decided in favor of the constitution, and returned the resolution, with his objection, as has been already stated.

On reference to Article I, section 19 of the Constitution of Pennsylvania, it will be found, that 'neither House shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place, than that in which the two Houses shall be sitting.'

Having returned this resolution to the House of Representatives, that body did not proceed in the manner prescribed by the Constitution, to reconsider it, but passed another resolution adjourning the House to the day previously fixed on, and without any communication of their doings to the Senate.

We do not pretend to decide upon this case either as lawyers or constitutional judges, but common sense induces us to believe, that this act of the House was not only highly irregular and illegal, but unconstitutional also. What the consequence of this illegal adjournment may be, we cannot foresee; but that disorder and confusion must grow out of it seems evident; and unless some remedy can be devised to repair the mischief, we are of opinion, that the legislative functions of both Houses are at an end, and that they cannot, in the present state of things, pass any law, or do any legislative act that can be valid or constitutional.

What is to be done? is the question, Will the Assembly go on to meet and reorganize their respective bodies? or will they seperate and return home, leaving the public business undone? If the Executive possesses the constitutional power of re-instating them in their legislative functions, and thus save a heavy expense to the people, would it not be advisable that he should so interfere? By the 12th section of the 2d article of the constitution 'he may, on extraordinary occasions, convene the General Assembly,' and altho' this occasion may not be of the kind contemplated by the framers of the Constitution, yet no one can deny, that it is an occasion of an 'extraordinary nature,' and merits Executive interposition. ib.

CONGRESSIONAL RETROSPECT.

In taking a glance at the Congressional proceedings of the holiday week, it will be perceived that the 'light business' only of the session has been touched: Amongst the most worthy of note, we select the following:

Mr. Johnson, of Kentucky, in the Senate, brought forward the only proposition of novelty submitted in that body for the past legislative week, which is no less than to permit the collection of postage money in the western states to be made in the currency of the respective states, where the letters, &c. are distributed. A similar question we believe was unsuccessfully agitated in the Legislature of Kentucky, in order to obtain the assent of the general government. The Senate probably with a view to prevent the further increase of unavailable funds in the Treasury, which has already accumulated to 752,000 dollars, (if we include the 152,000 likely to be lost by a deposit made in the Missouri Bank) have, for the present, laid this resolve on the table.

The Treasury.—Mr. Niles, of the Baltimore Weekly Register, who has more patience and industry than any body else, in wading through tables and columns of figures, has just published a long and able article upon the situation of the Treasury, giving its past, present, and probable state. In performing this labour, he has gone back and examined the annual treasury reports, since and including 1817. In 1817 the secretary calculated that the surplusses of the sinking fund, which would accrue between the first days of January, 1820 and 1825, as abundantly sufficient to meet the payment of the 19 millions of debt due in the latter years; but for the service of 1820 and 1821, we have used what should have been the surplusses of that fund, and besides borrowed eight millions. Instead therefore, of paying off the debt, the secretary congratulates us that we may not have to borrow money to pay current expenses until the said year of 1825, and we are amused with a project to pay the debt due in that year, which bears an interest of six per cent. by borrowing other money to bear an interest at 5 per cent. if the 5 per cent stock should remain above par and we are told of the saving that may thereby be made. The real substantial difference between the secretary's estimate in 1817, and the facts which he sets forth in 1821, (only four years apart,) may be represented thus—

There was to be redeemed of the public debt in 1825 after paying all other demands on the government, the sum of	19,000,000
We have already borrowed	8,000,000
Present positive difference	$27,000,000

In 1817, the Secretary told us that the whole of the public debt would be extinguished in 1830. When does he calculate on paying it off now? Mr. Niles concludes, that a loan in some shape is required, during the present session of Congress, or that the treasury will be exhausted before this time next year; and he also believes we shall have to borrow every year to the year 1825, unless the revenue is encreased by new taxes, or the expenditure diminished by a new and actual retrenchment. Although this document appears to have delighted so many of our fraternity, yet from the first we have believed it rather a blue report. N. Y. Spec.

PRIZE TO THE ALLIGATOR.

Arived at this port on Tuesday, Portuguese ship Mariana Flora, Venture Anacleto de Brette, master, from Bahia for Lisbon, where the vessel belongs, having been ordered to this port by the United States schooner Alligator, Capt. Stockton, for an attack upon the flag of the United Sates, in charge of Lieut, Abbot. The circumstances relating to the occurrence are as follows:

On the 5th November, lat. 20, long. 30, the Mariana Flora was discovered by the Alligator, standing to the Northward and Eastward, but soon after tacked to the Southward, and on the Alligator nearing her, she clewed up her courses, handed her top-gallant sails and hoisted a small blue pennant half-mast at the mized-top-gallant mast.

It was supposed on board the Alligator that the ship was in distress and all sail was accordingly made to approach her, but they were shortly after surprized by a fire from the whole broadside of the ship, when the Alligator was within a short distance of her, which she kept up for near an hour in a raking position, before a single gun was discharged from the Alligator; during all which time the U. S. flag was flying on board the Alligator, and the ship displaying no national flag.

At the expiration of nearly an hour from the time of the first attack, the Alligator commenced firing upon the ship, which she kept up till within pistol shot of the ship, on her quarter, when the broadside of the schooner being changed, Capt. Stockton hailed the ship to know who and what she was, whether she had any national flag, to which he received no answer. A few minutes after, the Portuguese flag was run up the mizzen, and immediately after the flag was hoisted, two guns were discharged at the Alligator. Captain Stockton then hailed the ship and told them if they did not cease firing and send their boat along side the schooner, he would sink her The crew of the ship then deserted their quarters and the Captain came on board the Alligator.

The ship mounted twelve guns, viz 2 long 12, 2 32, 4 24 & 4 18 pound carronades, manned with 26 men, including officers. A part of the guns were thrown over board; all the crew of the ship were left on board, and have arrived in her.

Extract from Carthagena dated 17th November.

'Carthagena has at at length been given up to the Republican army, by capitulation—and I am happy to say it has been strictly adhered to by the Patriots: too much praise cannot be lavished on officers and men, both at and since their entry. The strictest dicipline has been preserved. We have about five thousand men in the city, moderate and well conducted—in short, we are in a much more flourishing situation than for many years past. Commerce begins to flourish and produce is coming fast.'

Extract of a letter from a respectable source of a late date, from St. Fee de Bagota.

'Dr. Bollman agent for Barings of London, has rented from the government of Columbia the Salt Works at Zipaquira for twenty years for the sum of two millions of dollars to be paid in advance, and is now treating to take the national debt amounting to about three and a half millions of dollars at 7 per cent. interest—this is very favourable for the country.'

The Liberator Bolivar.

On the 1st Oct. this extraordinary man, on being called upon to take the oath as President of Colombia, addressed an eloquent letter to the President of the Congress, earnestly desiring to be excused from serving in that capacity; but he was overruled by them. On taking the oath he delivered an energetic speech, of which follows a curious sample: 'I am the son of war, the man whom battles have raised to the magistracy. Fortune has sustained me in this rank, and victory has confirmed it. But these titles, are not those which are consecrated by justice, by the welfare and the wishes of the nation. The sword, which has governed Colombia, is not the balance of Astrea, it is the scourge of the genious of evil, which sometimes Heaven permits to descend to the earth, for the punishment of tyrants, and the admonition of the people. This sword will be of no use on the day of peace, and that shall be the last of my power; because thus I have sworn within myself; because I have promised it to Colombia; and because there can be no republic, when the people are not secure in the exercise of their own powers. A man like me, is a dangerous citizen in a popular government—is a direct menace to the national sovereignty.

I wish to become a citizen, in order to be free, and that all may be so too. I prefer the title of a citizen to that of liberator—because this emanates from war, and that from the laws. Exchange, sir, all my honors for that of a 'good citizen.'

The President's answer is full of that heart-warning eloquence, and overpowering sentiment, which distinguishes times of public trial and the years of national regeneration.

CREATS DESCRIBED.

They say this town is full of cozenage;

"Prevention better than Cure."

Lee's Antibilious Pills,

It is not indeed presumptuously proposed as an infallible cure, but the proprietor has every possible reason that can result from extensive experience, for believing that a dose of these pills, taken once every two weeks during the prevalence of Bilious, Yellow and Malignant Fevers, will, under the blessing of Providence, prove an infallible preventive; and further, that in the first stages of those diseases their use will very generally succeed in restoring health.

They are admirably ensulated to carry off superfluous bile, and to prevent its morbid secretion—to restore appetite, a regular habit of the body, and promote free perspiration.

☞ Please enquire for 'Lee's Anti-Bilious Pills.'

Mr. Noah Ridgely—For two months past I have been afflicted with violent sickness at the stomach, and inclination to vomit, and loss of appetite. By taking two doses of your pills I am restored to a perfect state of health, which induced my wife to try them also, which was attended with the same good effects, being now able to attend to her domestic concerns. In my opinion this medicine is unequalled in stomach and bowel complaints, not being attended with griping pain common to other medicine.

JOHN SCOTT.

Lee's Worm Lozenges.

The proprietor has now the pleasure of stating that the following case came under his immediate observation. His little daughter about 5 years old, appeared very visibly to lose her flesh, no particular cause could be given for her thus pining away, she was at length taken with fevers, which, with other symptoms led to believe she had worms; he gave her a dose of Lee's Lozenges, which brought away incredible as it may appear, two worms, the one fifteen and the other thirteen inches in length, each three fourth's of an inch round: he has given the Lozenges to another of his children, which brought away a vast number of very small worms.

Lee's Elixir.

A sovereign remedy for colds, obstinate coughs, Catarrhs, asthmas, sore throats, and approaching consumption.

Mr. Noah Ridgely,

I was attacked with a violent cold, a severe cough and pains in my breast, which continued to grow worse; during which my appetite failed, and my voice altered so much, that it was with the utmost exertion I could pronounce a single sentence louder than breathe. Some of my friends observed to me that much had been done by the use of Lee's Elixir, advised me to procure a bottle, which I accordingly did, and to those persons unacquainted with the merits of this medicine, it will appear astonishing, that three doses should remove the pains in my breast, and the use of one bottle restore me to perfect health.

COURAGE.

That courage which prompts us to meet death, is but the courage of a moment, and is often excited by the vain hopes of posthumous fame. There is a species of courage more necessary and more rare, which makes us support without witness and without applause, the various vexations of life, and that is Patience. Leaning not upon the opinions of others, but upon the will of God, patience is the courage of virtue.

COURAGE.

That courage which prompts us to court death, is but the courage of a moment, and is often excited by the vain hopes of posthumous fame. There is a species of courage more necessary and more rare, which makes us support without witness and without applause, the various vexations of life, and that is Patience. Leaning not upon the opinions of others, but upon the will of GOD, patience is the courage of virtue.

LOVER DESCRIBED.

Oh thou didst then ne'er love so heartily,
If thou remember'st not the slightest folly
That ever love did make thee run into,
Thou hast not loved ——
Or if thou hast not sate as I do now,
Wearying thy hearer in thy mistress' praise,
Thou hast not loved——
Or if thou hast not broke from company
Abruptly, as my passion now makes me,
Thou hast not loved——

IRELAND.

To Merchants & Others, having business in Ireland.

THE subscriber informs the public that having undertaken the transaction of various kinds of business in Ireland, he left this country last fall, and made a most rapid tour through the northern and southern counties of that island, settling all the business entrusted to his management from the western country, and the consignments he received from the eastern ports, to the advantage, and he is happy to say, to the satisfaction of his constituents.

He begs to state, that while in Ireland, he undertook to transact business which obliges him to return there for a few months, and intends shortly to set out for that country, and should business worth attention, offer in Scotland, or England, he proposes returning via Great Britain, to this country, by the first of September ensuing.

Therefore, he is ready to undertake the execution and settlement of any legal claims, business or commission, that persons residing in this country may have to transact in Ireland or Great Britain.

Persons knowing themselves to be the life of a lease in Ireland, and aware that the landlord would take proof of their existence, by being qualified before the proper authorities in the United States, may now have a favourable opportunity of obliging their friends. Those persons who have applied, or may yet apply, are requested to have their papers immediately forwarded to the Post Office, Canonsburg, Pa. Their communications must be post paid.
